Another movie that i say i should've watched before. Intense romantic drama. Fascinating portrait of loneliness in a post-digital world. Amazingly original screenplay, concept, music, especially colours and performance from Joaquin Phoenix.

An intriguing, interesting and original story focussing on Louise Banks (Amy Adams) a preeminent linguistics professor who must lead humanity in communicating with visiting aliens. Amy Adams is amazing as the protagonist demonstrating humanity as well communicating and befriendng the aliens' unknown language and the impact it has on her.

Christopher Nolan's "Inception" is a cerebral heist thriller that delves into the realm of dreams, following Dom Cobb (Leonardo DiCaprio) and his team as they attempt the impossible: planting an idea in someone's subconscious. DiCaprio's intense and nuanced performance anchors the film, supported by a stellar cast including Joseph Gordon-Levitt and Ellen Page. The intricate plot, combined with stunning visual effects, creates a mesmerising experience that challenges viewers' perceptions of reality. With four Academy Awards to its name, including Best Cinematography and Best Visual Effects, "Inception" remains a landmark in modern cinema.
